This binder takes about twenty minutes to fill in the first time, and it answers the questions that matter when you're not there: who to call, who the doctor is, what the kids are allergic to, where the insurance card is, and who takes care of them if you can't.

How to use it

- [ ] Do the first three sections tonight.
  In an emergency, The kids, and Medical. Those are the pages a sitter, a grandparent or a paramedic would reach for.
- [ ] Keep codes off the paper.
  Gate codes, alarm codes, passwords and full account numbers never go in a binder. Write where they're kept instead, and tell the person in person.
- [ ] Print three copies.
  One in the kitchen, one with the person you'd call first, one for the glove box. The fridge card in section 2 is the short version.
- [ ] Tell someone it exists.
  A plan nobody knows about isn't a plan. The last page keeps a list of who has a copy.
- [ ] Read it again every season.
  Sizes change, insurance renews, the sitter moves. Section 12 has a review log so you know when you last looked.

The household rhythm

The recurring jobs that keep a house with kids running, at the cadence the app suggests. Write who owns each one and the next date, tick it when it's done, and move the date.

Every day

	WHO	NEXT	DONE
Plan dinner What's for dinner, who's cooking, does anything need to come out of the freezer.			☐
Ten-minute tidy Kitchen counters, the floor where the kids were. Ten minutes, then stop.			☐

Every week

	WHO	NEXT	DONE
Plan the week together Five minutes on Sunday night: who's where, which nights need a sitter, dinners.			☐
Grocery run The shopping list writes itself from the week's recipes.			☐

Every month

	WHO	NEXT	DONE
Look at what's coming due Passports, insurance, registration. Section 8 lists them.			☐
Check car seat straps and fit Pinch test at the collarbone. Chest clip at armpit level.			☐

A few times a year

	WHO	NEXT	DONE
Change the furnace filter Every three months. Write the size on the filter housing.			☐
Replace smoke detector batteries Every six months, every detector, including the basement and garage.			☐
Renew car registration Every year.			☐
Review insurance coverage Every year. Life, home, auto. Has anything changed?			☐
Each child's well-child visit Book it around the birthday.			☐

Done on paper?

The Petite Home app keeps this same file current, syncs it with your partner, and shares it with a guardian through a link that updates itself whenever you edit. It fills in from your contacts and reads insurance cards with the camera, so the twenty minutes you just spent is the last time you type it.

What the app adds

- The Family File, free.
  The first eight sections of this binder, on the phone, with a completeness score and a standing link for the guardian.
- Reminders before things expire.
  Passports, car seats, prescriptions, insurance and registration, a month out.
- A vault that opens with Face ID.
  Birth certificates, Social Security cards, the cards themselves. Encrypted on the phone before it's stored.
- The Planner for two.
  Both calendars, the chores, meals and plans on one week. A free-evening finder that checks both calendars. The sitter sheet, sent by text.
- A printed binder, when you want one.
  The app renders your filled-in Family File and the website prints and mails it, bound and tabbed.
